E.B. HENDERSON PAPERS

Collection 44-1 to 44-19

Prepared & Revised by:
Karen L. Jefferson
June 1980

Scope Note

Edwin Bancroft Henderson donated his papers to Howard University in 1965 and has made periodic additions to the collection until his death in 1977. The papers spans the period 1915 to 1976, documenting his life as an activist in the field of athletics and civil rights. As an athlete, educator, author, and administrator, Henderson helped to advance the field of athletics particularly in his efforts against segregation and discrimination in recreation and sports. A vigorous advocate of civil rights, Henderson wrote numerous letters to the editor of various newspapers, as well as publishing articles and working with civil rights organizations.

His papers, totaling five linear feet, are comprised primarily of news articles, publications, and speeches by and about E. B. Henderson. There are twelve scrapbooks, primarily of newspaper clippings by and about E. B. Henderson, his family, civil rights, and sports. Also in his papers are materials related to some of the civil rights organizations that he was affiliated with. In addition there are a few photograph albums of E. B. Henderson and the various activities he was involved in, as well as photographs of his family.
